As it sits, "The Hidden Message Journal"

Introduction

The purpose of "The Hidden Message Journal" is to enable the members of the "Hidden Mission Forum" present to the general public their findings and general research conclusions from their discussions, debates and musings from within those forums. This is not another discussion site per say, but rather, an online medium where information gathered from a variety of sources can be evaluated, incorporated into each of the member's individual presentations and then archived for future use and reference. The HMJ team hopes you find the presented material both interesting and informative.

Membership

Membership here is restricted to those who are members at the Hidden Mission; however, membership there is free and open to any who seek "straight talk on anomalous topics." Return often as material is added on a regular basis and that frequency will increase as our membership grows.

Categories

All information entered into the HMJ site, through whatever avenues, will find its way into a central database. Retrieving this information is dependant upon associating it with a specific category, or at least a general one. Therefore, categories are an integral part of information storage and retrieval and every effort should be made to maintain those associations.

Classes

Classes are groups of people with special access rights to sensitive site functions. With the exception of Site and General Administrative classes, no one class holds authority over another class. Members choose their class according to their own needs and wants. Introduction of new classes may occur from time to time and only when the need arises.

Banishment

Anyone who gets banned from the Hidden Mission Forum is automatically banned from the Hidden Message Journal.

Anyone who jeopardizes the welfare and/or the continuous operation of the Hidden Message Journal will be banned from the Hidden Message Journal.

Europe floats future space ideas

by: Steve - Monday 22 October 2007 - 10:18:17

Friday, 19 October 2007

A mission could be launched before the end of the next decade to put a balloon on Titan, the hazy Saturnian moon.

The balloon is one of several ideas being considered by the European Space Agency as it sketches out where its science should be focussed in future.

Other proposals include an X-ray telescope that flies in two parts; and a sample-return mission to an asteroid.

All the ideas will be subjected to further study; and are likely to evolve as international partners get involved.

Eventually, two missions will be selected, one to fly no earlier than 2017 and the other no earlier than 2018.

Esa's future-scoping project is known as Cosmic Vision. It assesses the big questions currently in space science and then tries to find mission architectures that can best deliver the answers.

Other Benefits

Member Blogs

In addition to their membership at “The Hidden Message Journal,” each member will be assigned their own personal weblog and it will be their choice as to whether or not they will utilize it. The username and password will be the same as the one issued to them for the Journal access. Once logged into their personal blog, each member is free to change their username, password and any other information entered during the account setup procedure.

The blogging software is B2Evolution and you can find their website here:

<http://b2evolution.net/>

Members have full control over their personal weblogs in both presentation and content, so long as the content does not cause harm to either the Hidden Message Journal members or the welfare and continuation of the Journal. Should a member be banned from the Journal site, then access to his or her journal will also be denied.

At the moment, only the basic features are included, but, as time permits, more will be added.

Features:

- Multiple blogs
- Multiple & sub-categories
- Multiple domains
- Blog skins / themes
- User comments
- Allowing/closing comments on a post by post basis
- Trackbacks
- Spam filtering
- Paged browsing
- Archives by Year, Month, Week or Day
- Archives by Category
- Weekly archives
- Category archives
- Keyword search (and / or / phrase)
- Multipage posts
- Extended "read more" posts
- Clean permalinks
- Post by post lang attribute
- Author contact forms
- Standalone admin contact form
- Web standards compliance

For those of you who may need it, Administrators will avail themselves to answer questions on “how to’s...” In time, “Help” pages will posted at your disposal.

The Hidden Message Journal Wiki

Although installed, “The Hidden Message Journal Wiki” is not yet functioning – much still has to be done. The tentative opening date is Dec 1/07.

The software is “MediaWiki” and is the same one employed by Wikipedia.org. The website for the wiki software is:

<http://www.mediawiki.org/wiki/MediaWiki>

Essentially, our site will be a ‘data dumping ground’ where anyone can post information onto categorized pages, but only members can edit the information. For now, that is the extent for the utilization of the wiki, but that can change as needed or desired.

As it sits, “The Hidden Message Journal”

As it sits, “The Hidden Message Journal” is in its most basic working form. Items have been added (Downloads, Newsfeeds, Links, etc.) to further exemplify what each of these individual features is capable of. These items can be removed or left as is – depending on members’ desire. Also, more, much more, can be added as time goes by. Style and layout have been assigned to the site, but like the above added items, it can be changed as well. Everything on the site can be displayed in just about any style desired, whether it’s a generic theme (as it now is) or completely customized (our own look and feel). More features can be added and some can even be removed – again, it all depends on our needs and/or desires.

The point is this is not a static and flat website. It’s dynamic and can and should change over time. Now that it is set up and ready to go, these changes can be initiated at any point in time. We now have all the tools to present our stuff to the world, a site to mold into what we wish it to be and a community with the freedom to do both.
